Petition to Reduce Dues

A "Committee to Reduce AFLA Dues" has been organized in Oregon and consists of Frank Hicks, Wade Longworth, Don Naylor and Albert Manley. It is circulating a petition requesting that the national portion of Collegiate dues be reduced to $2 and Active to $3, and that a new family membership be established at a reduced rate.

The Committee believes that the present scale of dues discourages recruitment and is financially unnecessary; that a membership of less than 3000 does not compare well with other sports groups and that broader-based organization is needed.

The petition will be voted upon at the Annual Meeting.

NATIONAL OFFICIALS

by Dr. Daniel Bukantz

It is important for U.S. fencing that we develop better officials. Recognition of many competent individuals is difficult on a national scale because of the distances involved. The only time when all areas of the country are represented at one place is during the Nationals, yet frequently talented people are overlooked through ignorance of their potential — and another opportunity to gain valuable experience is lost.

We are making an effort to solve this problem. Secretary Anthony Orsi has written to each Division asking for a list of the best active officials. As chairman of the Bout Committee I intend to use all who are thus listed. The response to date has been good but by no means complete. The names herein have been reported, and the letters after each name indicate the area of talent as follows: W-Women's Foil; F-Men's Foil; E-Epee; S-Sabre; T-Technician. ### One Vote For Mellees?

Dear Eidtor:

I write with reference to the corps-a-corps. Recently while refereeing a plebe meet between the NE* Military Academy and Donney Brook HS - after 18 tedious foil and sabre bouts, we started the epee. An under-enthusiastic crowd of fifteen relatives were in a state of sonambulistic lethargy when - on the seventh corps-a-corps in as many starts - Cadet Temperton reached out with his free hand, grasped his opponent's weapon below the guard and proceeded to wrest it away. What with one thing leading to another, a period of "free-play" started which has yet to be covered in any book on fencing.

The audience responded with alert interest and I'm sure I heard Col. Growback (Officer in Charge) mumble what sounded like "Hot damn - this is more like it". In the ensuing confusion I must admit that - to my later chagrin - I got my hat and coat and faded away.

Query - should I have stopped the mellee, or should I petition for a change in the rules which would permit a little more freedom of action? After all, why should France always take the lead in changing the F.I.E. rules?

Yours for increased spectatoritis,

Nat Lubell

Equipment and Safety

No fencer in dirty or unsafe apparel will be permitted to fence.

Weapons: Each fencer must have a minimum of two acceptable weapons available for every bout and they must be at or near the strip where he is competing. Electrical weapons must be certified by the technician as approved before they are considered acceptable.

Body Cords: Foil and epee fencers must have at least two body cords in working condition (certified by the technician) with a standard three-prong connector at the reel end.

Foil: Men and women must have insulated metallic vests that properly cover the target. The strip at the groin must be at least 1.2" (3 cm) wide. The metallic collar must be at least 0.8" (2 cm) high around the entire circumference. The mask must be sprayed with insulating material and the bib may not extend below the top of the collar bone in front. Fencers must have two approved vests. Check any patches carefully, as they often cause trouble and may make the vest defective. They are advised to have a spare mask and glove as well.

Epee: The protective undergarment is mandatory. If the trousers do not extend to the ankles, stockings must cover the entire leg below the trousers so that no bare skin is exposed. Epees must have the flat 8 mm point with the rim beveled or dulled with emery paper.

Note: Equipment should be in perfect condition when you arrive at the Nationals. Any necessary repairs will be at fencer's own cost. It is expected that two or more booths will be set up to repair damaged weapons and to sell new equipment.

Trophies

All 1963 winners of Trophies are expected to deliver them to Mr. Anthony Orsi, Secretary, on or before the start of competitions.

It is important that all cups be polished and in good condition when they are returned.

Certification

The Secretary of each Division must send by registered mail the following information, immediately upon completion of the Divisional qualifying competitions, to Mrs. W. J. Latzko, Corresponding Secretary, 33-62nd Street, West New York, N. J., 07093:

1. Certified list of all individual fencers actually taking part in the qualifying competitions.

2. Certified list of fencers entitled to qualify from the division (including automatic qualifiers) in order of their estimated competitive strength.

3. Certified list of alternates in each weapon, in order of placement.

4. Certified list of teams authorized to represent the division, and of any alternates.

These lists must reach the Secretary no later than June 13, 1964 and do not constitute the required entry for the competitions. A form will be sent to each Secretary in May.

PUBLICITY QUESTIONNAIRE

All contestants at the Nationals are required to submit the following information to A. John Geraci, Chairman of Public Relations, 279 E. Northfield Rd., Livingston, N.J., for use in publicity releases for the Nationals at Atlantic City and the Olympic Tryouts at the World's Fair:

AN ANSWER TO MIKE DASARO

by Brig. Gen. J. V. Grombach

I take exception to Dasaro's article (Vol. 15, No. 3, p. 6).

My reasons may be archaic and old-fashioned, but I was under the naive impression that fencing, as well as all amateur sport, was for sports sake and did not make either winning or subsidization a necessity. If the Government is to support fencing and fencers are to be compensated for their time to help them support their family, for the propaganda benefit and glory of Uncle Sam, then I feel we might as well go whole hog into Marxism instead of hanging suspended in Fabian Socialism. Then top fencers, for as long as they were useful and winners for the State, could make a living at it and devote all their time to it.

I admire Dasaro's efforts and dedication to fencing, but I think he is all wrong in crying for Government subsidy. In this rebuttal I use him as a reference but there is no intent to attack him personally.

Dasaro's use of words is subject to correction; for instance I do not believe you can have "subsidized sportsmen", only "subsidized athletes". However, he leaves no possible leeway as to what he has in mind when he states that present records and (amateur) athletic performances cannot be accomplished by athletes on a part time basis. Many persons and the records will not agree with this claim.

The comparative prowess of nations at the Olympics can only be judged logically by number of Olympic "points" per million population. The Soviet Union with its mass athletic program and a population of 722 million will naturally outscore Norway with 21 million. However, subsidization and its resulting regimentation in amateur sports, which are based a great deal on inspiration, does not necessarily mean victory. As a matter of fact, the majority of top countries on the basis of points per million population in the 1960 Olympiad do not subsidize their amateur athletes. In 1956 Australia, Finland and Sweden had better than 22 Olympic points per million population while Russia had 3.44.

Once there is government contribution or subsidy, there is government control. During the Kennedy administration an offer was made by the State Department to contribute to the support of the A.A.U. The condition, however, was a takeover of management of international teams. If Dasaro believes for one moment that he would be happy with government help and regimentation, I can assure him otherwise from observations made during his service with the Armed Forces and Modern Pentathlon Squad. While Army life and training, perhaps by coincidence, led to his winning his first National Championship, his refusal to take lessons from a coach provided by the U.S. government and recommended by the French Federation might normally, in the system he advocates, have had serious consequences for him. Unless Dasaro intends to turn pro he must realize that neither fencing nor the government owe him anything. Dasaro must know that if he is subsidized he must submit to control and winning will become a necessity.

The reason for our few "points" is not because our fencers are not supported by the government and have to make a living in the free enterprise system. It is simply because we have not as yet developed the temperament for the sport and have not yet enough top-flight professional coaches and a proper attitude toward them. In Europe a top fencer will gladly work out and take a lesson from any fencing master, acquiring new techniques and different approaches each time. Here in the U.S. unless Dasaro can have the coach he believes is best for him, he will not take a lesson.

With regard to his reference to "fantastic heights of world records" that "cannot be based on a part time basis", the strange thing is that taking the world records in Track and Field, Swimming, and Weight Lifting (men and women) approximately 17 are held by subsidized athletes and 32 by non-subsidized sportsmen.

So congratulations for Dasaro thinking big, but not at the cost of turning over amateur sports to Marxist ideas. Unless of course we go along with Krushchev when he says "(Western) society cannot leap into communism from capitalism without going through a socialistic stage of development".

For any fencers who believe in government subsidy, the latest information from behind the iron curtain indicates that subsidized athletes are now not only in training units and camps, but are only allowed occasional visits to their wives or families. They are under strict supervision and if they fail to perform up to standard, or fail to show improvement, or refuse to comply with training rules, or do not take proper lessons from the designated coaches, they are not only sent back to work or assigned to factory or agricultural duties, but receive a black mark on their record for having failed in the State Sports Program.

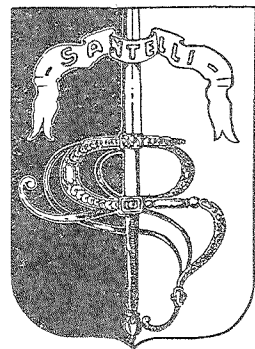

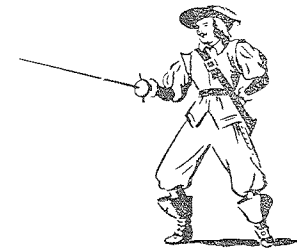

Originally Soviet athletes were either from the Armed Forces, the police or secret police or were workers covered by decrees which instructed their respective employers. These decrees gave athletes full allowances for training periods, for extra vacations and necessary time off for sports participation. The vacation could not be considered as absence from work, nor could they even be deducted from the yearly vacation quota. The special treatment of athletes handicapped Stakhanovism, the forced labor stretchout system.

Repercussions have wrought important changes. Serious training and disciplinary problems in the Army chargeable to the immediate superior made every athlete's boss shy off state athletes in his command. Serious production shortcomings resulted in industry or agriculture. There, the boss complained that his failure to meet his production schedule of wheat, milk, electronic tubes or automobiles was due to his having too many athletes. This was an excellent alibi for the non-observance of work objectives.

As the original method of subsidizing athletes endangered socialist production, the government was forced to organize sports squadrons. The result has been the full time subsidized athlete which Mr. Dasaro appears to favor.

However, as we all know there is now a capitalistic revolution behind the Iron Curtain and even Krushchev has allowed revision in laws which permit some "capitalistic" incentive and profits in industry and farming. So far however no life prizes or estates are being awarded to athletes, even those who win world or Olympic championships. Therefore temporary subsidization for athletes on a full time basis will ultimately injure them and effect their overall future unless, of course, they remain in sport on a lifetime or professional basis.

A REPLY FROM MICHELE ALAUX

It was with considerable interest that I read the articles concerning the future of American fencing as presented (1) from the viewpoint of an Eastern European, Dr. Kausz, (2) from the viewpoint of an American amateur, Mr. Harold Goldsmith, and finally (3) by Mr. Dasaro. The first two opinions had their legitimate and true perspective with respect to the social, political and economic background of the countries involved.

Mr. Dasaro's article, however, tends to promote the cult of champion, rather than proposing a constructive solution. Its attempt to classify fencers according to personal motivations rather than technical ability is unfortunate.

The champion is the reflection of a sport's condition in any country. His very existence stems from the mass of the sport's participants. The level of fencing technique of all participants is the most influential factor in the development of champions.

The statement that "The problem of American fencing is very complex and goes beyond the individual, the coach and even beyond the AFLA . . ." contains the real core of our problem; nor can this problem be solved by seeking the solution outside of these three elements.

It is not so much the preparation that is involved in our case (except for the impending events) as the unity of our leaders behind a national policy which plans for the future in terms of (1) development of a highly qualified coaching body, (2) development of a program to increase the broad base of the permanent fencing population, and (3) the judicious use of whatever means (technical, material or financial) at our disposal in order to improve the quality of our competitors.

That our fencers who represent the country in international competition need special training is common sense. It has been done in the past and certainly will be done in the future. The 3rd place of a Calnan, 2nd place of Joe Levis and 3rd place of Albert Axelrod, plus many other finalists in the Olympics such as Maria Tishman, Jan Romary, Maxine Mitchell, Dick Pew, George

Worth, Tibor Nyilas, etc., proved that when our fencers have the champion's quality, they succeed as well as any other fencers from any other country.

These fencers made personal sacrifices which were necessary to achieve the goal which they had set for themselves. The fact that they made their sacrifices increased their motivation and helped them to succeed as individuals, as well as champions.

All that remains permanently of a sporting career and will last for a lifetime is what the champion has gained in the development of his personality through his dedication, determination and personal efforts. Believing otherwise leads only to frustration.

Nothing could be more detrimental to the education of our young fencers than to make them believe that becoming a champion constitutes a way to make a living rather than a way of life. In western countries when governmental subsidy takes place, it is not for the aid of individual sportsmen; it is for the development of the sport.

Let us not forget that sports are primarily a way of educating and forming a man's character and responsible people. If one succeeds in that respect, the champion will then appear and at the same time public recognition for his sport and his accomplishment.

INTERCOLLEGIATES

ICFA CHAMPIONSHIPS

by Lt. jg Joseph Paletta, Jr., USN

The Intercollegiate Fencing Association held its 67th Annual Championships at the United States Naval Academy. It was the host team, Navy, that walked off with top honors, winning the 3-weapon title with 76 points. Columbia, last year's champion, was second with 67, followed by NYU (63) and CCNY (59). This is the 8th time Navy has won the title; the last time being in 1957.

The epee team title went to Rutgers, for their first ICFA title. The strong Rutgers team upset the Columbia and Navy squads, forcing them to take second and third places respectively. All 3 Rutgers men qualified for the individual finals.

The foil team event was dominated by Navy who thus won the "Little Iron Man" trophy for the 15th time. Second place went to NYU, the only other 15-time winner, and Columbia, last year's champion was third.

The sabre team competition was strongest and closest. Navy and CCNY tied for first place with 25 points each. Both schools will share the trophy. NYU, last year's champion, and Penn tied for third with NYU winning on fewer touches against.

The only returning ICFA Individual Champion, Howard Goodman (NYU) in Sabre, did not make the finals. The Sabre title went to Ray Fields (CCNY). The epee title vacated by Larry Crum (Navy), was won by Paul Pesthy (Rutgers). Marvin Garovoy (NYU) won the foil title vacated by Jay Lustig (Columbia).

The outstanding competitor, selected by the contestants and coaches, received the beautiful George L. Cointe Award. This year's winner was Art Peterson (Cornell).

by Barbi Brill

Paterson State College won the IWFA 36th annual championships by taking all top honors. The winners, coached by Ray Miller, lost a last round match to defending champion Fairleigh Dickinson of Teaneck, but earned the title on the count of bouts.

Arleen Melnick (PSC) won the individual title with a 44/3 record.

NYU finished second after tying PSC with a 10/1 record. FDU-T, who had an undefeated season, placed third with 9/2.

MIDDLE ATLANTIC CONFERENCE

The well-balanced team from Stevens Tech, coached by Cliff Kirmss, regained the 3-weapon crown it last held in 1961 and took the Yale Trophy for the 5th time in the last seven years. Temple's surprising sophomore team, coached by Al Kelly, placed second and defending champion Johns Hopkins, coached by Dick Oles, was third. The three schools shut out all other bids for the team titles: Stevens took the foil, Temple and Johns Hopkins tied in epee and the latter also won the sabre.

A five-man tie for the foil crown was won by Faste of Stevens Tech. Second went to Lehigh's Yonker and third to Bertele of Stevens. McCloskey of Temple was fourth and Gaskill of Muhlenberg fifth.

Mintz of Temple won the epee title on a fence-off with Eustis of Johns Hopkins. Third place went to Alber of Lehigh on touches over Thompson of Stevens.

The sabre crown was won by Cardillo of Stevens with Davidson of Hopkins a close second. Third was resolved on touches, with Teichman of Hopkins outscoring Lafayette's Ebner.

which it has also produced four individual champions. The Santelli Award for coach of the year was well deserved by Ray Miller.

The rest of the teams finished as follows: Montclair State, Hunter College, Rochester Tech, Rutgers-Newark, Jersey City State, Elmira, Brooklyn College, Drew, Fairleigh Dickinson-Rutherford.

NCAA CHAMPIONSHIPS

Princeton, won the team championship for the first time by a margin of two bouts over runner-up NYU and five over defending champion Columbia, which placed third. Navy, winner of the ICFA title the week before, placed fourth.

Another "first" was scored for Princeton by its captain, Bill Hicks, when he became the first Tiger to win the individual foil title. Hicks won with a 32/1 record, losing only to runner-up Marvin Garovoy, NYU's ICFA Champion. Cornell's Ron Schwartz placed third.

ICFA Champion Paul Pesthy of Rutgers outclassed the field in epee. He is the son of the Rutgers coach, was US Pentathlon champion in 1962 and placed second in the US Nationals last year. Second place went to Jack Patterson, Air Force. A three-way tie for third was resolved on touches in favor of Bob White of Princeton, with Navy's Bill Benson and Oberlin's Gary Stone following in that order.

Craig Bell of Illinois won the sabre crown. An unprecedented six-man tie for second was resolved as follows: Tom Pecsvaradi, Drexel, second; Reuel Liebert, Columbia, third; Howard Goodman, NYU, fourth; Ray Fields, ICFA Champion from CCNY, fifth; Mike Dmytryk, UCLA, sixth; John Prenez, Air Force, seventh.

The third member of the winning Princeton trio was John O'Sullivan who contributed an important total of 24 victories in sabre. This is coach Stanley Sieja's 18th year at Princeton.

NYAC - MARTINI & ROSSI INTERNATIONAL

by Jack Keane

The fourth annual New York Athletic Club - Martini & Rossi International Fencing Tournament was the most resounding success yet. From the presence of a dozen current and former individual and team world champions to the initial appearance of network television cameras, the tournament was a three day long pageant.

Forty-two started in foil and epee and thirty-six in sabre. Competitors came from eleven nations, topping by three countries the previous high. Canada, England, France, Italy, Hungary, Poland, Mexico, Norway, Switzerland, United Arab Republic and the United States started.

Three presidents of foreign federations also attended. They were Jack Dalton of Canada, Cdt. Louis Bontemps of France and Dr. Fidel Luna of Mexico. And of course the Bureau of the F.I.E.

As is usual for this tournament, the surprises began the very first day. The Americans have shed their psychological chains and are now giving each and every European a tremendous man-to-man battle. In the round of 16, Richards defeated Gabor of Hungary, 8-3; Davis defeated the junior world champion Jackie Courtillat of France 8-6; Uriah Jones walloped Pasquale LaRaggione of Italy, 8-4; and Magnan barely got by Kwartler, 9-7.

Later, Jones went to the round of four with Cohen, and Ryzard Parulski and Egon Francke of Poland by eliminating Bill Hoskyns, 8-4.

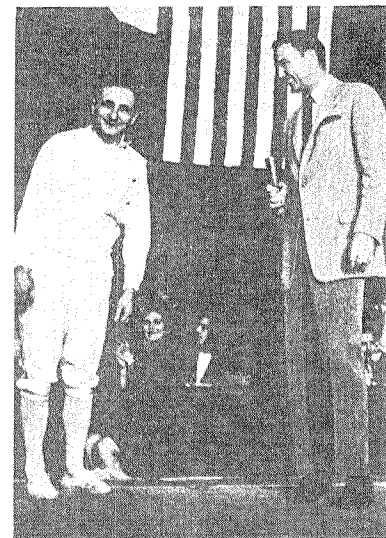

The Martini & Rossi Foil Trophy was won by Parulski for the second time when he bested Cohen 8-4. An early lead stood up for the fantastically competitive Pole despite Herbie's best fencing to date. Francke defeated Jones for third.

In epee, Americans eliminated all foreign entrants from the final. Ed Vebell of Fencers Club defeated Dave Machnik of Salle Csiszar for the title won the last two years by Hoskyns. The English wizard, suffering the effects of a cold, was ousted in the first round. He was joined later by Gabor, Breda of Italy and Rene Queyroux, France's national champion. According to Endre Palocz, chief of the Hungarian team, the American epee level is high, lacking only consistent stars with the inconsistent weapon.

On Sunday, the concluding day of the tournament, the exciting sabre event took place before the cameras of NBC-TV. Bud Palmer and his crew saw a magnificent show: Jerzy Pawlowski, escaping from a wicked 10-8 setto with Claude Arabo, of France, met Attila Kovacs in the match for the championship. Pawlowski was in control all the way as he sent the son of Pal Kovacs to defeat 8-4.

Several foreign observers said that Pawlowski fenced much better than he did at Gdansk and was probably in the best form of his career now. This would make him the pre-Olympic favorite. Among the Americans who gave good accounts in sabre were Al Morales, Mike Dasaro and Wally Farber. Farber had a rouser with Kovacs in the round of eight before going down 8-6.

In the Match of Nations event, Poland defeated the United States 15-14 after the U.S. led 14-13. Parulski slipped the winners home against Dave Micahnik. Cohen in foil showed very well against Francke defeating him 5-2 and Dasaro held his own with Pawlowski, 7-5.

The NYAC, Martini & Rossi and the AFLA were recipients of many foreign compliments on the organization and running of the tournament. Norman Lewis did a great job as Bout Committee Chairman.

"Figh-ting" in Japan

by Mary Huddleson

Last October I accompanied my husband on a semi-business trip to Japan, where we spent a thoroughly delightful, sometimes hilarious, sometimes frustrating three weeks.

The day before our departure from Japan I found myself dressed in fencing clothes, bouncing in a small kami-kaze cab, tearing down the traffic laden streets of Tokyo. Bouncing with me were Mr. Ishii, my trusty interpreter, and Miss Takeuchi, whom some of our lady fencers may remember with sorrow from the time she won our national championship in N.Y. in 1962. Our destination was Chuo University.

Miss Takeuchi had torn a ligament in her leg and was not fencing herself. Ishii, a portly middle-aged, enthusiastic gentleman, was full of curiosity. Although he was a first class guide and interpreter, he had never seen any fencing before. I was told that all men students in the universities must take two years of some sport and most of them choose judo. Kendo is less popular, although all the Japanese with whom we talked knew something about it. Western-style fencing, however, is not so well known.

At Chuo we entered a large dark building, where we descended into the basement. We went along a corridor filled with the familiar reek of a used gymnasium. From a room to our left came grunts and shouts and stamping of feet. About 15 young men in various forms of gym attire were going through an energetic and (to me) weird form of leg and arm exercises. "Judo" said Ishii. In the next room the shouts were more uneven and staccato, but the exercises were equally energetic. "Kendo," said Ishii. From the last room came a chorus of militaristic yells, accompanied by what I detected to be the rhythmic beat, over and over, of many pairs of feet doing the advance-lunge. "Fencing," said I to Ishii. "Ah-so," said Ishii.

There, in single line, were about thirty students in shorts or gym pants, lunging up and down the large room. Two of them were girls. They were all throwing themselves into the exercises with great abandon and their lunges were tremendous in spite of their short stature. In front of them, giving the commands, stood the student captain of the fencing team, who seemed a very poised young man.

After about ten minutes of uninterrupted lunging, the entire class charged up and down the room in a kind of fleche for ten more minutes. Then they formed two lines, facing each other for what they called "bou-ting." I intruded myself into the line opposite one of the girls and she showed me the series of exercises which we went through: one-two attack, parry-riposte. Soon, for some reason or other, and contrary to what the others were doing, she started to parry my riposte and I, of course, would then try to parry her counter riposte and we had quite a little game going. She took off her mask, grinned, and said "Figh-ting??" So we skipped the exercise stuff and had a regular bout. Her attacks were fast, simple and powerful, but her defense was not so strong.

Suddenly everyone stopped fencing, saluted his partner, and moved down one to the next person. The exercises were now over and everyone was "figh-ting." We would retain the same partner for about five minutes, stop, salute, and move on to the next. Since I couldn't understand what the captain was saying, I had to keep my eyes open for who did what, when. The longer one stayed in this Virginia Reel type of "fighting," the better for one's stamina and experience. Every now and then a tired fencer would drop out of line, go to one side and squat on his heels in that exhausting Oriental pose of "relaxation" until he caught his breath. Then he would rejoin the fray. They kept this up until everyone had fenced everyone else. I did not last long, but before I dropped (and I do mean dropped) permanently out of the line, I had had all kinds of opponents, some quite experienced and some beginners.

I asked Miss Takeuchi who was the students' fencing master, for obviously the student captain could not instruct them in any detail. She replied, "Mr. Mori," and waved her hand toward the wall at a lone photograph, which proved to be that of my friend, Tarao Mori, who teaches fencing in Los Angeles. Tarao evidently comes to Japan a few times a year and makes the rounds of the universities, giving fencing lessons and instruction. From this, the students carry on by themselves until his next visit. When I asked Takeuchi who was her coach, I got the same surprising answer: wave of the hand, "Mr. Mori." The students work out for three hours everyday. Several of them, including the two girls, were introduced to me as "Olympic aspirants."

At the end of the "figh-ting" period, which lasted well over an hour, the captain talked to everyone in what I took to be a tone of both criticism and encouragement. He then bowed and the students all bowed in return; the captain bowed in our direction; Takeuchi bowed; Ishii bowed; I bowed. Ishii gave them a brief speech of thanks on my behalf. We all bowed again and the class was over for the day.

The next morning my husband explained to his Japanese friends, who had gathered to bid us farewell at the airport, that I was limping because of "unaccustomed activity with Olympic aspirants." Their mystified, but polite reply: "Ah-so, des-ka."
